REGARDING SCRIP.

In the house of commons on the 4th, Mr. Sifton, minister of interior, stated that under a proposed amendment to the Dominion Lands Act the sale of scrip to brokers would be made as difficult as possible. Instead of the scrip being payable to bearer it would be only transferable by the Indian to whom it was issued, who would have to execute a legal document to be furnished to the department. It was easy to get an Indian to sell his scrip for a few dollars, but very difficult to get him to sign anything. There were about 3,000 Indians entitled to receive scrip.

YUKON CHARGES.

Speech by Frank Oliver, M. P., on Sir
Charles Hibbert Tupper's resolution asking for a judicial enquiry into alleged misconduct of government officials in the Yukon. House of Commons, June 29th,
1898. From Hansard.

When this question was before the house the last time, I voted against the motion for a judicial inquiry. I objected to the stand taken by the mover of that motion with regard to the inquiry then going on, of which we now have the report. It was contended at that time that that inquiry was not adequate and could not bring about any good results, but I held it was a proper inquiry and, in all reasonable probability, would bring about good results. That inquiry has been held, we have the report, and I consider that the character of the report justifies the position I took on that occasion. I said at the time that I had not that belief in the righteousness of the Yukon officials, which some other hon. gentleman on this side had. I consider that the evidence submitted before Mr. Ogilvie, and his report on that evidence, substantiates the position I then took, and fully substantiates the reports we have had, from time to time, from the Yukon concerning the actions of the officials there. Mr. Ogilvie states in his report that it has been proven that the doorkeeper did take money, that the officials inside did work for pay from outsiders, that on Dominion Creek two discovery claims were allowed to be located, which resulted in a confusion of claims. These were the principal allegations made against the administration of the Yukon, and these have been proven by Mr. Ogilvie's investigation. But I consider something more than an investigation is needed. I consider that a great wrong has been done to many people who went out as pioneers to that country; and while it may be impossible to redress these wrongs, it is not impossible to punish those who perpetrated them. I will vote for the motion of the hon. member for Pictou, not because I support all that his motion contains or the position he takes in every particular, but because I wish to place before the house and the country, in the most emphatic manner possible, my desire that the offences which have been committed against the pioneers of the Yukon by certain officials of the government should be punished and punished as severely as possible, as the result of any investigation that may be held. I consider that it is necessary to hold an investigation for the credit of the officials as well as for their punishment. All were not equally guilty, but that certain officials were guilty has been proven by the departmental investigation held by Mr. Ogilvie. It is desirable for the good name of those who did no wrong and the punishment of those who did wrong, that the right should be sifted from the wrong.

COMMISSIONERS AT SLAVE LAKE

Our correspondent at Lesser Slave lake sends the following account of the treaty and scrip negotiations there:

The Indian and half-breed commissioners arrived in on the 19th of June, eleven days overdue, owing to some hitch in the transportation arrangements. Commissioner Ross came in over the government road and arrived 13 days ahead. His presence here assured the natives who had gathered at this point that the notice to meet here was all right, so they waited patiently, with a patience not known to white men. However, when they did arrive they were not long in getting down to business. On the afternoon of their arrival Commissioners Laird and Ross drove to Rocky Point, one mile west of the town proper, and decided after looking the ground over to hold treaty there. The natives were notified when to come and on the morning they came headed by Kee-noos-nayoo, "The Fish," their chief, and his four councillors. They had held a council and elected their chief and councilmen previous to the arrival of the other commissioners. Mr. Ross paid them a visit and urged them to do this so as not to delay the proceedings when the commission arrived. It was a good move, for from the time of the commencement of the treaty till the last man was paid off, but two days by the watch had gone, and at the present writing the half-breed commissioners are battling with their end of it. Somewhere in the neighborhood of 250 persons took treaty, the balance are for scrip. What their number is, is hard to learn, but it is considerably more than those who took treaty.

The proceedings of the treaty proper, so far as your correspondent was able to report, with spectators so thick the atmosphere could scarcely be used for breathing purposes, were as follows:

After the detachment of police had gone through their little manoeuvres they lined up in front of their large tent where the commission sat, presented arms and retired. The chief and his band then came forward and sat down in no particular rotation, but as indifferently as possible with this exception, the chief and councilmen to the front and the minor lights to the rear. They were given a short spell to look the "great chiefs," over, which they did, and when their gaze wandered away to the hills, that rise a little beyond the Hoar river which flows past Rocky point out into Lesser Slave along whose shore are dotted their humble shacks, Commissioner Laird addressed them. He said among other things, that as "they were here for a peaceful meeting a piece of tobacco would be given each for a friendly smoke." The T. & B. was passed around and after they had all filled up their pipes the commissioner proceeded. He told them they had Mr. Albert Tate as their interpreter and also Mr. S. Cunningham, who would represent them, (the Indians) so that one can watch the other. He spoke perhaps an hour going into the reason, why they were here to treat with them, who sent them, and explained the proceedings of other treaties that had taken place in the country to the south and east of them, and the good results since. He also pointed out the benefits resulting to the Indians. He told them that after hearing the terms if they decided not to accept, no harm would be done, they would still be friends, only they would have to obey the laws. Through his whole speech a firmness was noticeable and it had a good effect. He outlined the terms and concluded a very effective speech from an Indian point of view by telling them that flour, bacon and tea would be given them as a present to-day whether they took treaty or not. It was a present in every sense of the word, a token of good will and in no sense a bid for their consent to a bargain that did not agree with their understanding. He resumed his seat after an invitation to anyone to ask questions on anything they did not understand. Kee-noos-nayoo, "The Fish," said he did not understand about the suit of clothes he was to get every three years; he wanted to know if the clothes were the same as the traders sold; if they were, he did not understand how they would last him that long. He was told that the great mother provided a good garment for her children to wear. This explanation satisfied him, and he branched out in his remarks, spoke about brotherly love, (Commissioner McKenna, the eastern man on the commission, was visibly affected) and concluded his speech by saying that after he better understood the terms he would be able to say yes or no, and stick to it.

Moostos, "The Bull," brother of Kee-noos-nayoo, spoke well, in fact he is acknowledged to be the orator of his people in this country, and he certainly is. He is a very fluent speaker, with a splendid delivery, and holds his subject well in hand. His speech went further towards turning his people than all the brotherly love talk of the chief, and small guff indulged in by a host of speakers who followed.

Wah-pee-nayoo, "White Partridge," followed, "The Bull." He is the funny man and his remarks are all strictly original. He quoted Mr. Laird as having said that they were all brothers, well if that was so as he, Mr. Laird, was, from his appearance, the elder, he, White Partridge, was the younger, and when the younger brother asked for anything it was the elder brother's place to grant him what he wanted, so "I want my ground for my cattle, and that pair of boots that man on your left hand side is wearing. (This was Commissioner McKenna, who was dressed after the style of a "Klondiker," with boots that reach to the knees and laced up the front.)

Mr. Ross followed the Partridge and answered all questions and arguments advanced by the different Indian speakers. His argument was well received by the people and made a splendid impression. They were all acquainted with him as he has been here sometime and had visited them in their lodges. He pointed out the advantages derived by the Indians when the country became opened up; spoke of the cheapening of goods by the government road as it made it possible to trade both winter and summer, and explained to them that competition made far worth more to the hunter, and with the advantages spoken of and assistance every year from the government, their future was very bright indeed, and as long as they kept their word, and as long as the sun shone and the river ran just as sure the government would keep theirs.

The Fish followed Mr. Ross and asked his people what they had to say.

Wah-ti-go, "The Cannibal," stood up and spoke briefly but to the point. He said he accepted all that had been offered with a willing heart. He personally would try and live up to his part and hoped his brothers would do as he was doing. He sat down and was followed in a similar strain by a dozen or two other speakers.

Father Lacombe spoke at some length in Cree and advised them to take treaty. He reviewed the different treaties from Winnipeg west and north and told of the conditions of the Indians before and after the treaty and pointed out clearly all the benefits to be gained by accepting the offer made to-day. After the Father finished speaking and threatened to club any man who failed to stand up, they all arose amid much laughter. Commissioner Laird thanked them and told them all to get a ration and go home and return next day at three o'clock, which they did.

The second day opened with a short speech by Commissioner Laird. After thanking the people for being so prompt in coming to decision on the previous day and also for the very orderly and friendly manner in which the people had listened to the terms offered, he would trouble them once more, in order that they may thoroughly understand the bargain. It had been written out and he would read it to them. He started in at this point and read word for word the terms of the treaty. It was a lengthy article, but did not differ very much from the terms offered to other tribes in the south. There was a lot of "Great-Mother" talk and that legal thing sandwiched in here and there, which is the pure thing for lauding the Indians with as they do not differ from their white brothers in respect to vanity and conceit. However, after they had heard the terms read and were asked if they had anything to say, a hundred and one kicks were registered in as many minutes. Some of the objections were really funny, for instance:

The Partridge has a wife and a cow or two and three horses, he is about 65 years old and he doesn't believe in war. No person around here ever saw him war, so we take it for granted, that he isn't in love with it. Well he wanted a piece of land somewhere in the neighborhood of a mile square. Another noble red man, who had once, long ago, so he said, visited Edmonton and saw a wagon that he thought was just what he wanted on this farm that the "great mother" was going to have fenced in for him. He wanted to know if his elder brother, as he called Commissioner Laird, was acquainted with that particular brand of wagon. The commissioner pleaded not guilty, but he promised to look into the matter.

An old tart from the east end of the lake called, Puss-i-quam, or "Sound Sleeper," wanted to know if he could not come to some arrangement with the representatives of the great mother to act as the "medicine man" for her children that she, the "great mother" loved so much. He went on to tell what he could do and couldn't do. He painted a beautiful word picture of healthy looking bucks and fascinating young women and if he was appointed, the "great mother" would always feel sure that her representative Mr. Laird, was a man of sound judgment. He gave the commissioners, in their turn a bright smile, and a word of praise, and was, in his own way, a smooth article throughout his whole speech. They managed to put him on the shelf after some sparring, but the future will hear from Puss-i-quam or I miss my guess.

Well, Moos-toos at this stage of the proceedings rose up and went after his people strong. He made a very vigorous speech and in a very few minutes had them silenced. Commissioner Laird spoke and asked the chief and his councilmen if they were satisfied to come forward and sign. They hesitated a little, but finally came forward and touched the pen. Harrison Young, the secretary, wrote their names. All the clergy in this section were present. The Catholic mission mustered all hands. One very praiseworthy point about the commission was that attempts were made to influence them as to where they were to hold council. They simply used their own judgment and gave prestige hunters the go by.

The second day's proceedings were closed by the "Fish" having a silver medal about the size of a tea saucer fastened around his neck and a flag with the "great mother's" picture on it, presented to him. The picture was good and looks at its best now. After a siege of teepee smoke it will represent Moos-toos's wife to a dot, as she is dark, fat and sixty.

On the third day the Indians were on hand at 9.30 and got their coin, and started in to spread themselves. The first real blow out of their lives. It was fast and furious and lasted about as long as a snow ball in a stove. To-day, four days after, they are around looking for work on the boats, but they are all happy and say they had a good time. One old Indian who talks a little, said that he was "En-nee-suche," (wiser) is personally. I have my doubts, personally as there is too much "mamoy-ca-tach" (don't care) about their clothes, and they also have a habit of forgetting their own faults quickly.

The half-breed commission are busy issuing scrip. At the present writing everything is working smoothly. The treaty commission split up here. Commissioner Laird goes down the river from the Crossing, Messrs. Ross and McKenna goes to Dunvegan and St. John. The up the river outfit are against it. As there is no possible way for the Indians to live around the posts they simply come in in the spring with their fur and pitch off into the woods. They are hunters and live on moose meat principally, and how they can wait around the posts is beyond the understanding of the different traders who have come down from the north this spring. Mr. Ross, we personally know, is a hustler of the first water. We formed that opinion from the way he acted around here, and he won't leave a stone unturned to get them in if they can be found, but that is questionable. We hope he can locate them for he deserves success.

Business is brisk here, plenty of money floating around, settlers not many, but a few coming in. The future looks bright for this section, our only kick is the "sketeers." They are the most plentiful crop that grows out here. Well everything can't come our way. We will simply grasp the coin with one hand and beat off the "sketeers" with the other. The pleasant effect of the one on the mind will counter balance the "ornary" effect of the other. The late arrivals for the treaty and fun include the Brick Bros, Burbank, but he did not wait, Davis and Atkinson, from Vermilion, Clem Paul, from Keg river, and Miss Lawrence, from Vermilion. A number of returning gold hunters are also stopping over. A number of gold seekers came in with W. G. Ibbotson, who arrived on Friday evening from Hay river. Mr. Ibbotson had a very successful season and brought in a large lot of fur. He leaves for Edmonton, weather permitting, in the morning.

BASEBALL.

The much anticipated game of baseball, Accountants vs. Professionals, was played at the track on Friday night, having been postponed from Thursday on account of rain. As expected the game proved a source of entertainment to a large number of spectators and though several errors were made on both sides, the entertainment was none the less on that account. Only four innings were played, the score then stand 38 to 37 in favor of the Professionals who also had only one man out. The players were:

ACCOUNTANTS.	PROFESSIONS.
Maroney, p.	McNamara.
A. C. Fraser, c.	Taylor.
Stephen, 1st b.	Goodwin.
Shaughnessy, 2nd b.	Cross.
J. W. Kelly, 3rd b.	Cowan.
Jellett, s. s.	Whitelaw.
J. A. Ross, r. f.	Wilson.
K. Collings, c. f.	McInnis.
Cartier, l. f.	Harrison.
Jas. Martin, referee.

The score by innings was:

Accountants:	13	3	0	21-37
Professions:	11	9	7	11-38

PARLIAMENTARY.

In the house on Wednesday afternoon Mr. Richardson (Lisgar) presented a petition signed by 150 Manitoba farmers calling upon the members of the house to insist by every constitutional method that bills granting subsidies and favors to incorporations be not passed until the just demands of shippers and producers are considered.

Talk is pretty general in the direction of prorogation being reached by the 20th inst. The probabilities are the debate on the redistribution bill may end to day. There is nothing like ninety degrees in the shade to hasten prorogation.

The Edmonton District Railway Co.'s bill to change the name to the Edmonton, Yukon & Pacific, passed the commons railway committee this morning.

On the 6th the redistribution bill was up for discussion all night, and was warmly debated. At 3.25 a. m. the house divided on the second reading of the bill, which was carried by 77 for to 44 against, a majority of 36 for the government. It was a straight party vote, with the exception of Mc Carthy and Stubbs, Independents, who voted with the government.

EDMONTON TO DEASE RIVER.

W. Gifford, now of Cobourg, Ont., who went into the Dease lake country last year by way of Edmonton, writing of his trip says:

In company with Henry and John McCoy, late trappers on the Peace river for some years, Cayuse Graham, of Edmonton, and Frank Henton, I went into winter quarters about 13 miles up the Dease river above Sylvester's Landing and we stayed there until February, when Henton went out with some men who arrived from the Liard. Later in February I also went out to Glenora with Dan McCrae, of Edmonton, who had come across from Graham ahead of McCoy and myself. There were in all about 20 men near Sylvester wintering. I am unable to give you all the names of those who wintered there. Here are some of them: Johnston, of Edmonton; J. Lang, A. Winters, "Black Dan," McIntyre, from near Calgary; Lafferty, Louis Fisel, J. Haynes and three others; two from Colorado; three from Dakota, and others. I heard of very little sickness on the Dease, but news from the Liard was not so good, as we heard there were some sick there. When I got to Laketon, on the Dease lake, I found one man there with badly frozen feet. Later in the winter when I got to Glenora, on the Stikine, I there found a lot of men sick with scurvy and an hospital had been established in a log shack. There were fourteen men there at one time down with scurvy. I heard of one death from frost, namely, one Mowat, on the trail to Teslin lake, and one from heart failure on the Dease river. This last man was found lying by the stove dead, but had provisions. He had complained to others some time previous of pain in his heart. Almost all the men I knew or heard of were going to get out of the country as soon as they could. They were nearly all too short of provisions to remain and were also disgusted with the poor prospects, as not a man had found anything that was worth working at Sylvester. Flour was $19 per 100 and all other goods in proportion and they were all gone by the end of March, so no grub could be got. I came out up the Dease, down Dease lake, down the Tanizilla river to the Stikine, down the Stikine to Wrangell and from there by steamer Danube to Victoria. I left Glenora on the steamer Casca on May 28. Was laid up in Glenora from March 14 with both big toes frozen. I do not think there were many deaths on the trail, not more than say six from all causes, and I never heard of a suicide.

I am coming west again, and would like to get up near your country if I can.

My opinion of that trail by the route I went is that it is by no means a killing contract, but I do not think it the proper way to go to get into either Atlin or the Yukon country. In face of the more rapid transit now offered by Skaguay, etc., any man would be foolish to go or attempt to go via Edmonton or Ashcroft, as it is too long and too hard work. My opinion is fully endorsed by all who have tried either trail.

The climate from Edmonton to Dease river and Glenora in either winter or summer is to my idea splendid. Of course cold in winter, but you do not feel the cold as much as in Manitoba nor does it continue so long cold at a time.

S. NANKIN, WATCHMAKER AND JEWELLER
Has a Full Selection of Watches, Clocks, Jewellery, Silverware and Optical Goods.

A WORD ABOUT REPAIRS.

There is no article that is so closely associated with us as a Watch. It regulates all our business, and is either of the greatest value or no value whatever. A watch must either be repaired properly or ruined, and hundreds of fine Watches have been utterly ruined by being practised upon by unskilled workmen and apprentices. Having been at the Jewellery and Watch Repairing bench for the past 19 years in the most reliable shops in some of the largest cities of EUROPE, UNITED STATES and CANADA, from which I have received diplomas and excellent references for my skilled mechanical work, which proves that I am a sufficiently master of my trade. I make this class of work a distinct feature and give it my most scrupulous attention. All work entrusted to my care will be repaired expeditiously and in a superior manner, accompanied with a guarantee for twelve months. I shall do my utmost to gain the confidence of all who favor me with their patronage. One trial will prove.

Hoping to have a call from you, I remain,
Yours respectfully,

Fig Leaves.

From ancient and biblical history we learn that the early costume of man—and woman too—was fig leaves. Since those days times and manners have changed, and custom now demands more substantial apparel. FIZZLED OUT.

More and more it is becoming apparent that the Atlin district is not a man's stamping ground. Thou of hardy miners who went in last fall with only a few hundred dollars are realizing this, and a glimpse of the passengers who came down on the steamer Rosalie, says a Vancouver correspondent, would have been sufficient to convince even the most skeptical that the poor man in Atlin is in street parlance, "up against a hard game." One hundred and fifty men came down on the boat and none of them had money. Many were ragged and unkempt, while not a few were thin even to emaciation. One old miner said: "I know at least 50 men who frequently went without food for two days."

ANGUS RIDGE.

A public school examination of the pupils of this school was held on Wednesday p. m. The attendance of visitors was small as farmers are busy. Those present expressed themselves as highly pleased at progress made by the pupils since the last examination.

Miss Tessie Wilson and her brother Fred have been on the sick list for a few days. Mr. Robert Angus has placed a substantial fence around the quarter section he purchased last summer. We have not heard anything about this weekly mail for Lewistown and Duhamel yet.

Mr. Spencer recently of Minnesota, is a painter by trade and has opened a shop at the Burg. We understand he is getting plenty of work and knows how to use the brush. Mr. Moses Oesch is foreman for Mr. Wm. Blake.

Mr. R. Boyes of Thrice, Ont., who has been visiting friends here for some time left for Medicine Hat last week. Mr. Rix is doing work for Mr. J. M. West in the mercantile line.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Wyld paid a flying visit to the Burg. on Saturday last.

Mr. Sherington is laid up with an attack of rheumatism. Mr. and Mrs. Shantz attended the celebration in Edmonton July 1st.

Mr. Robinson the new Methodist minister is expected to preach here next Sabbath at the usual hour, in his absence Mr. Speers will fill the pulpit. Mr. Truesdell was the guest of Mr. McKay on Monday. Mr. Spenser visited his home this week.

Rev. Hamilton had a large congregation last Sabbath. Among those present from Wetaskiwin were: Mrs. John West and Miss Martin, the assistant teacher. Messrs. Ramsay and Bryan, teachers, Edmonton, have gone to Winnipeg for their holidays this year instead of coming to our village. They will likely visit Ontario before returning.

We had another shower of rain today. Crops are looking remarkably well. The Battle River school will close a week from the coming Friday. Jake Shantz visited the parental roof last Sabbath.

A new bridge will be built across Battle River, west of Thomas Kerr's farm. The contract has not been let yet. The Wetaskiwin Agricultural society have purchased 40 acres for a fair ground.

July 3rd, '99.

A DESPATCH from Montreal on the 6th says that Pare and Holden, who robbed the Napanee branch of the Dominion bank, and who subsequently escaped from the Napanee jail, have been re-arrested and brought back to Napanee.

STURGEON.

A very enjoyable social was held in Sturgeon Methodist church on the evening of June 26th. The gathering was not as large as expected, owing to a heavy shower of rain falling at the hour of meeting. The ladies of the congregation prepared a beautiful tea for the occasion, which was heartily partaken of by those who had the pleasure of being present. After tea was over, a pleasant time was spent in vocal and instrumental music, Mr. Galway charming the hearts of all present in his usual style and Miss Chegwinn playing the accompaniments. The singing and music being brought to a close, Master Bertie Long read the following address and Miss Luella Long presented Mr. Galway with a purse:

REV. MR. GALWAY.

Our Dear Pastor and friend: As we are aware that the time has come, when you have to leave us, and enter a new field of labor, we take the present opportunity to meet you, that we may express our sorrow and regret at your departure. Your duties with the members and adherents of "Bethel Church" have always been cheerfully and faithfully discharged. During the year that you have been amongst us, you have taught us beautiful lessons of love and fellowship as taught by Our Saviour while on earth. All through your ministry you have proven yourself a worthy follower of the cross. We will not only miss you in the pulpit, but in your many visits to our homes, which were always gladdened by your company. You have also proven a true friend in trouble and bereavement, always ready to sympathize with the sorrowing and give a word of counsel and encouragement to the sick and afflicted. As a small token of our respect and gratitude to you, allow us to present you with this purse. Not for its intrinsic value, but as a token of our regard for you as faithful pastor and true friend. We wish that God's blessing may accompany you to your new field of labor, and through all your sojourns of life wherever you go. And when you are done with your earthly labors here below, and Christ comes to make up his jewels, that you may be called to be one in his crown. We feel that our parting shall be only for a time, that we all shall meet in that Mansion above, which Christ has promised to his people, who are faithful to the end.

MRS. C. CARSON.
MISS LIZZIE LONG.

Namoo, June 26th, '99.

Mr. Galway was taken very much by surprise and made a very suitable reply, referring to the kindness he had received from the people of the Sturgeon appointment and regretting very much that circumstances necessitated his separation from them and hoped that he might have the pleasure in the near future of being their pastor.
